AN INVITATION

On Saturday and Sunday, November 5 and 6, the Theatre Association of Pennsylvania will sponsor SHOWCASE, PA. in the Bucknell University Theatre. You are cordially invited to attend this event, beginning at 1:00 P.M. each day. Because admission will be free, the audience will be seated on a first-come basis.

The purpose of SHOWCASE, PA. is to permit professional Alternative Theatre groups and Children's Theatre groups to present sample performances of their works for prospective sponsors across the state. Sponsors will then select one or more of these performing organizations for presentation in their own localities. It will be an opportunity for you to see a varied program of the best professional theatre that Pennsylvania has to offer.

Theatre Association of Pennsylvania (TAP) is a non-profit association of theatre people, founded in 1968 to further the understanding, knowledge, and art of theatre in Pennsylvania. TAP is organized on a statewide basis of thirteen regions under regional directors. These regional units assure local attention and state-wide assistance to all theatre interests—professional, college, and university, community, and public school theatre organizations.

Bucknell University Theatre and the undergraduate dramatic honorary society are members of TAP.

WHY A BENEFIT PERFORMANCE?

Last year the Penn Wood Players of Johnstown, Pa., finally found a home after fifteen years of drifting. They acquired an old vaudeville theatre, condemned by the state for demolition. A board member of the Penn Wood Players reported in a recent issue of THEATRE, PA., "Volunteers swarmed the place to put it back in operation: rebuilding the roof over the stage three stories up in the fly space, rewiring, cleaning out fifty years of filth, restoring plumbing and furnace. Rebuilding took some professional help as well, and there was the cost of new materials, but the community had faith. The effort succeeded and two musicals, a comedy, and a drama were mounted at the Arcadia last year."

The bills for construction are still coming due—but the theatre itself is gone, washed out by the Johnstown Flood of 1977.

In addition the Penn Wood Players lost almost all their possessions: power tools, lights and equipment, costumes, permanent sets, fly equipment, two sets of theatre curtains, etc. Two weeks later the Penn Wood Players mounted a show, U.S.O. style, and took it out to the homeless gathered in seven makeshift refugee centers.

These people deserve our respect as well as help. Consequently, the proceeds from our Saturday, October 15 performance of SUMMER and SMOKE will go to the Penn Wood Players. If you were not in our audience that night and care to join us in a contribution to this non-profit organization, please send your donation, made out to Penn Wood Players, to Harvey Powers, Director, Bucknell University Theatre, who will forward it.

AT

234 Market St. • Lewisburg

Late in Lewisburg,
you might one night
overhear the following scenes:

ALMA: My Nellie, how you've grown up since you've gone to school!

NELLIE: My mother used to choose my clothes.
Now I shop for myself
at the Lyon's Shoppe.

ALMA: Well, you do look lovely, Nellie. In fact I might look for my fall wardrobe at the Lyon's Shoppe.

NELLIE: Oh Miss Alma, they have the best in women's clothing for all the seasons.

REV. Alma, have you seen that hat your mother is wearing?

ALMA: Yes, it is lovely, isn't it?

REV.: Yes, but it looks so expensive.

ALMA: It does, Father, but it came from the Lyon's Shoppe where the prices are very reasonable.

REV.: Well, all right then if it
came from the Lyon's Shoppe.

ALMA: Father, you know the Lyon's Shoppe—high fashion and low prices!
