RAGPICKER: Countess, there was a time when old clothes were as good as new—in fact they were better. You may not believe it, but right this minute, the highest-priced shops in Paris are selling clothes that were thrown away thirty years ago. They're selling them for new. That's how good they were.

COUNTESS: Well I don't care! I still do all my shopping at The Lyon's Shop in Lewisburg. They sell me the most beautiful new clothes and in fact, I've never thrown away my Lyon's Shop clothes, not even after thirty years.
